AEGIS European Conference on African Studies
London, June 29 to July 3, 2005

CALL FOR PAPERS

Following a strong response, the Call for Panels for this conference is now closed; accepted panel proposals may be found on the conference website www.aegis-eu.org/conference/

The Conference Steering Committee is now pleased to invite interested papers-givers to submit a title and 50 word abstract to the convenor of an appropriate panel as apparent from the details available on the website. Panel convenors may accept papers at their discretion so long as they do not thereby exceed their allotted time. In the latter case, convenors will need to liaise with the Steering Committee before accepting further contributions, and a final decision may have to be deferred to the closure of the Call for Papers. The panel convenors will also have discretion to decide what EU languages are used in their panels.

Graduate students interested in Africa are particularly encouraged by the Steering Committee to submit proposals for papers to the convenors of appropriate panels. Should there be no suitable panel, or should papers not be accepted, the Steering Committee will endeavour to organize a small number of overflow panels expressly for research students, in which case proposals should be sent to Professor Alessandro Triulzi (e-mail: a.triulzi@agora.it).

A number of plenary lectures and discussions, as well as cultural events, are planned. Details will appear on the website as they become finalised.

THE CALL FOR PAPERS CLOSES 1 NOVEMBER 2004

E-mail enquiries for further information sent to the Centre of African Studies (cas@soas.ac.uk) will be forwarded to the appropriate member of the AEGIS Conference Steering Committee.

Confidential, will be holding 6 meetings during this academic year. The ABG is a forum for the discussion of African affairs as they affect business, commerce, and finance across the continent. It brings together business people, journalists, diplomats and those in the NGOs with academics and scholars who share expertise on Africa. If you would like further information about membership or meetings, please contact the Centre of African Studies. Attendance is by invitation only.

28 October: Empire-Building by Default or Design? Exploring the intertwined expansion of South African and Nigerian strategic interests and energy investments across the continent.

Speaker: Olly Owen, Africa Researcher at World Markets Research Centre.

A new kind of strategic map of Africa is forming, in which the continent's major powers have closely tied energy and security interests. As companies based in the continent's major economies see conditions as conducive to international expansion, energy investments are becoming an important factor in structuring relations between African states. As a result of the same process, the sphere which major countries such as South Africa and Nigeria consider to be crucial to their national interests is expanding to encompass new sites of energy-sector investment. As South African and Nigerian energy investments in other states grow, so does the strategic importance of those states to the governments in Pretoria and Abuja, and they become a factor in foreign and security policy. Equally, peacekeeping and regional security-restoration ventures undertaken by Nigeria and South Africa have opened up new overseas arenas in which domestic firms can make profitable investments. There is thus an evolving continental network of strategic and energy interests with which other investors in Africa will have to learn to deal - but is this emerging by default or design? The speaker will examine this trend in the light of recent developments.

30 November: The Commission for Africa: Will it change Africa in 2005?

Speaker: Richard Dowden, Journalist and Director, Royal African Society

The most important thing we can do for Africa is to try to understand it. African societies are going through a huge transformation which will take a long time to work through – possibly 50 years or more. The British government seems to think that all Africa needs is a Marshall Aid plan and somehow this will solve the problem. But Africa has already had a Marshall Aid plan several times over. Aid has been part of the problem not part of the solution. Its representatives in Africa concentrate more on spending this money than analysing and understanding why Africa is the way it is. If outsiders are going to help them must first have the humility to listen and understand.

The Bridge (6-30 October, Wednesday to Saturday at 19.45, post-show discussion 13 October – Pedro Obaseki in conversation with Bonnie Geer) at the Oval House Theatre, 52-54 Kennington Oval, London SE11 5SW. A play BY Pedro Obaseki, directed by Karena Johnson. “The Bridge is set in the ‘Decade of The Dragon’ – a period between 1988-98 in which corrupt and vicious military dictatorships mauled the lives of average Nigerians under the crush of jackboots. This was a period when the average Nigerian on the streets lived a perilous existence, living by the day and leaving all else to celestial forces. Many took solace in suicide, apparently too weak to confront the reality of their collective nightmares. While some, like Pedro Baseki, managed to survive incarceration in wretched, mosquito-infested jails; thousands of others were murdered or driven to take their own lives. The Bridge is an epitaph to these unsung souls, a surreal, strangely comic story of an everyman character attempting to commit suicide off a busy motorway bridge in the Lagos rush hour…” Website: www.ovalhouse.com

Targets, Voice and Choice: Options for Improving Public Service Delivery. Autumn 2004 Meeting Series at ODI. Discussions on voice and choice in public services are never far from the forefront of UK news today. Not only are these topical issues in the UK, they are also highly relevant to public service delivery in developing countries. The new lunchtime meeting series at ODI aims to explore these issues in detail, looking at both developed and developing country experiences with regard to targets, voice and choice in the management and delivery of public services. Are targets really helpful? Should increased choice be introduced into the health and education sectors? Which is better, voice or choice? Is there an optimal combination of targets, voice and choice? The objective of the meeting series is to enhance understanding of the key concepts, and to inform the debate, drawing on experience from a wide range of settings, with a particularly focus on the health and education sectors. For further information e-mail: meetings@odi.org.uk/fax: 020 7922 0399.

First Call for Papers. Private Military Companies and Global Civil Society: Ethics, Theory and Practice (14-16 July 2005) at University of KwaZulu-Natal. South Africa. While the history of mercenaries stretches back at least 4000 years, recent events in Africa, Iraq and elsewhere have highlighted the fact that private military forces are now being employed to a degree that is arguably unprecedented in the year since the signing of the Treaty of Westphalia in 1684. Also unique is the degree to which ‘Private Military Companies’ are demanding recognition as legal and morally legitimate entities. These developments raise important moral, ethical, and policy questions. Despite this, there has been little focused attention on this phenomenon, nor has there been any sustained investigation into the relationship between global civil society and private military companies. This conference will provide a form for an interdisciplinary engagement with this topic. Papers on related topics will also be considered for inclusion in the programme. Likely conference speakers include: Doug Brooks (International Peace Operations Association), Kevin O’Brien (RAND Europe), M B Ramose (University of South Africa), Joseph Runzo (Chapman University), Clare Hall (Cambridge), and Nancy Sherman (Georgetown University). Deadline: 1 December. Enquiries may be directed to Deane Baker, School of Philosophy and Ethics, University of KwaZulu-Natal (e-mail: BakerDP@ukzn.ac.za)

Call for Papers. Middle Passages: The Oceanic Voyage as Social Process (13-16 July 2005). Hosted by: Western Australia Maritime Museum, Fremantle, nr Perth, WA. Convenors: Professor Marcus Rediker (University of Pittsburgh) and Professor Cassandra Pybus (University of Tasmania). Sponsored by the International Centre for Convict Studies and the Institute of Advanced Studies, (University of Western Australia). The aim of this international conference is to explore the social and cultural transformations caused by the transport of labour, unfree and free, around and across the Atlantic, Indian and Pacific Oceans. The convenors’ definition of the ocean includes riverine and other hydrographic systems that connect to it. They seek to investigate, compare, and connect the experiences of slaves, indentured servants, transported convicts, political prisoners, sailors, and migrants of all kinds, and to consider ships as places where their struggles have made history. Papers are invited that emphasize the transformative historical function of vessels of all kinds, from the smallest indigenous canoe to the deep-sea vessel of the age of sail, to the large modern cargo ship, especially related to these specific themes. Contact: Emma Christopher (emma.christopher@bigpond.com)

A three-day conference on historical and contemporary relations between the United States and West Africa. Major themes: Trans-Atlantic slave trade; African Americans and West Africa; United States foreign policy towards West Africa, and the new West African diaspora in the United States. Participants will be drawn from the United States, Europe and Africa. Graduate students are encouraged to attend and present papers. Selected papers will be published in book form. Deadline: 31 December 2004. Enquiries to: Dr Alusine Jalloh, Director, The Africa Programme, University of Texas at Arlington, PO Box 19991, Arlington, Texas 76019-0991 (e-mail: Jalloh@uta.edu).

VISITING SCHOLARS TO THE CENTRE OF AFRICAN STUDIES

Leventis Research Co-operation Programme (Nigeria) scholars based at the Centre of African Studies (September to December):

Dr Franklin-Kennedy Asonzeh Ukah, Department of Sociology, University of Ibadan. Research: The Redeemed Christian Church of God.

The Leventis Foundation supports collaborative research between the Centre of African Studies (University of London) and colleagues in Nigerian universities. Successful applicant(s) will be attached to the Centre of African Studies, based at SOAS, for a period of three months. Applications should include a complete curriculum vitae, a 1000 word statement of current research interests and aims to be achieved during the research period in London. This programme is particularly suitable for younger academics, perhaps working up a PhD thesis into publishable form. The deadline for the next round of applications is 1 May 2005. Further information may be obtained from the CAS office or website.
VISITING SCHOLARSHIP FOR EASTERN AFRICAN ACADEMICS scholars based at the Centre of African Studies (January to March 2005):

Sr Margaret Angucia, Institute of Ethics and Development Studies, Uganda Martyrs University. Carrying out research for development of a Peace and Conflict Management Course.

The Visiting Scholarship for Eastern African Academics supports scholars from Ethiopia, Eritrea, Somalia, Tanzania, Kenya and Uganda. The successful applicant(s) will visit the Centre for a three month period in order to pursue research and/or course development in the broad field of African studies in the social sciences and humanities; preference will be given to academics at the early stage of their career. The closing date for applications is 30 April 2005. The flyer can be found on the CAS webpage.

The Centre of African Studies gratefully acknowledges its collaboration with Goodenough College, which provides our visitors with accommodation.

⊗ ACADEMIC VISITORS (contactable through the Centre of African Studies)

Dr Mary Jo Arnoldi, Curator (Africa), Department of Anthropology, National Museum of Natural History, Smithsonian Institution, Washington DC, USA. Research relating to Herbert Ward, a British man in Congo from 1884-1889 who made a collection of Congo objects which were donated to the Smithsonian in 1921. Also working on ‘Public Culture and Memory in Post-Colonial Mali: Festivals, Museums and Monuments’. To 9 December.

Professor Roza Ismagilova, Institute for African Studies, Russian Academy of Sciences, Moscow, Russia. Research: Ethnopolitical situation and federalism in Nigeria. From 1 October to 31 December.

⊗ NEW PROFESSORIAL RESEARCH ASSOCIATE

Professor Murray Last, Emeritus Professor of Anthropology (University College London). Professor Last's current research programme largely centres around publishing the various materials he and his various Nigerian colleagues have collected on health and social issues in contemporary Kano over the last decade. But the major task is to write up the ethnographic data he has collected over the last thirty years on one large compound of Maguzawa (non-Muslim Hausa) (they have subsequently converted to Islam) in southern Katsina. Meanwhile there is also a work of filial piety to do - putting M G Smith's 1000-page typescripts of Sokoto history onto disk and then into print (funding has been promised). But there are several other projects in mind, such as publishing obscure, short but key documents written in Arabic in the 19th century, important to jihadic history, and contemporary northern Nigerian society. Professor Last expects to continue visiting northern Nigeria at least once a year.

The Rift Valley Institute. By John Ryle

Founded in 2001, the Rift Valley Institute (www.riftvalley.net) is an association of specialists in the countries of Eastern Africa, including Sudan and the Horn. The aim of the Institute is the collection, analysis and dissemination of local knowledge and its application in advocacy and planning. Fellows of the Institute are recognised specialists from the region and elsewhere. They include academics, aid workers and human rights researchers, who represent a range of scholarly and practical disciplines. (http://www.riftvalley.net/inside/fellows.htm).

Sudan is currently the main area of Rift Valley Institute research. Projects include a survey of local peace initiatives in north and south, field training programmes for aid workers, and the creation of a database of persons abducted from Bahr-el-Ghazal province during the civil war (the Sudan Abduction and Slavery Project, co-directed by John Ryle and Dr Jok Madut Jok, http://www.riftvalley.net/inside/projects.htm.) The Institute is engaged in a pilot project with a view to preserving the archives of the emergency aid operation in Sudan over the past two decades.

The Rift Valley Institute is based in the UK and Kenya, and funded by The Open Society Institute, the J.M. Kaplan Fund, the UK Department for International Development and Unicef.

John Ryle is Chair of the Rift Valley Institute (john.ryle@riftvalley.net) and a Research Associate of the Centre of African Studies (University of London)

MISCELLANEOUS

Cadbury Fellows’ Workshop at the Centre of West African Studies, University of Birmingham.
A Programme of Annual Residential Workshops. The Centre of West African Studies announces a new programme of annual residential workshops built around current themes in African Studies. Two or three fellows will be appointed to participate in a ten-week programme of seminars and discussion groups, culminating in a CWAS Interdisciplinary Conference in May each year. (Deadline for applications for 2005: 1 December 2004). Fellowships will cover return air-fare, accommodation and living costs for a period of up to ten weeks. One aim of the Fellowship scheme is to assist new scholars to develop a research paper and bring it to publication, and each year, the conference papers will form the basis of an edited book or a special issue of a journal.

2005 Theme: Cultural Nationalism and Social Critique. The theme for 2005 is Cultural nationalism and social critique. Throughout Africa, ethnic nationalism has become an important form of political mobilization. Beyond the level of ethnic cleavage, the 2004 Cadbury Fellows workshop focuses on the mobilization of moral and aesthetic discourses to conceptualise social exclusion and inequality, including class, gender and race. We ask:

- How are cultural affirmation and the construction of ethnic identities linked to an interrogation of the state and its institutions?
- How do cultural works and artistic forms that interrogate social difference embody and transcend an ethnic audience?
- How are the products and discourses of cultural nationalism experienced by varied groups of Africans at the level of everyday life?
- How have African intellectuals, politicians, activists and artists interpreted, debated, promoted and critiqued cultural nationalism?
- What role is played by cultural nationalism in the global economy and the transnational movements of resources, people, media and ideas that it engenders?

The leaders of the 2005 workshop will be Dr Keith Shear, Dr Insa Nolte and Dr Lynne Brydon. The theme for 2006 will be announced shortly, and applications for this will be invited from June 2005 onwards.

Who is eligible for a Cadbury Fellowship? We are looking for young African scholars who have something to contribute to this theme, and whose research would benefit from a residential fellowship of up to ten weeks at the University of Birmingham. They should be in the early stages of their academic careers and based in an institution on the African continent. They should have a PhD or be close to completing one. It is intended that the Fellows will have time to use the University’s excellent library resources, discuss their work with academic staff at CWAS, and contribute to the intellectual life of the department by participating in academic and cultural events here.

How to apply for a Cadbury Fellowship
Fellowships will cover return air-fare, and accommodation and living costs for a period of up to ten weeks. If you would like to be considered for the 2005 fellowship, please:
(1) Ensure that you can get away for up to ten weeks from late March to early June 2005;
(2) send a research project description of not more than 1000 words on the theme, showing what research you have already done and what you would work on during the fellowship, and
(3) send a short c.v. (not more than 3 pages) and the names of two referees.
Applications can be sent by e-mail to M.I.Nolte@bham.ac.uk or by airmail to Dr Insa Nolte, Centre of West African Studies, University of Birmingham, Edgbaston, Birmingham B15 2TT, England.
2005 Interdisciplinary Conference
The Interdisciplinary Conference which concludes the Cadbury Fellows’ Workshop will be held in Birmingham in May 2005. This event is open to other participants, who should seek support from their own institutions to attend. Inquiries about the conference and expressions of interest in participating should be directed to Dr Insa Nolte at the above address.

2004-2005 Fellowships for Threatened Scholars
Scholar Rescue Fund Fellowships
The Institute of International Education's Scholar Rescue Fund provides fellowships for scholars whose lives and work are threatened in their home countries. These fellowships permit scholars to find temporary refuge at universities and colleges anywhere in the world, enabling them to pursue their academic work and to continue to share their knowledge with students, colleagues, and the community at large. When conditions improve, these scholars will return home to help rebuild universities and societies ravaged by fear, conflict and repression.

How the Scholar Rescue Fund Works:
• Academics, researchers and independent scholars from any country, field or discipline may qualify. Preference is given to scholars with a Ph.D. or other highest degree in their field; who have been employed in scholarly activities at a university, college or other institution of higher learning during the last four years (excluding displacement or prohibition); who demonstrate superior academic accomplishment or promise; and whose selection is likely to benefit the academic community in the home and/or host country or region. Applications from female scholars and under-represented groups are strongly encouraged.

• Universities, colleges and research centers in any country may apply to serve as hosts.

• Applications and nominations should be made to the Fund's Selection Committee. Institutions interested in hosting a particular scholar should submit a letter with the scholar's application. Fellowships are awarded to institutions for support of specific individuals, to be matched in most cases by the institution or third-party. Fellowship recipients are expected to continue their work in safety at the host institution – teaching, lecturing, conducting research, writing and publishing. Fellowships from 3 months to one calendar year will be considered with up to 25 fellowships awarded annually. The maximum award is US $20,000.

• Applications are accepted at any time. Emergency applications receive urgent consideration. Non-emergency applications will be considered according to the following schedule:

  Winter 2005: Applications received by January 1; decision by March 1.
  Spring 2005: Applications received by April 1; decision by June 1.

Post-Doctoral Fellowships (2). The Center for African Studies in conjunction with the College of Education at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, is offering two post-doctoral fellowships

Humanities and International Studies Fellowships at Stanford University, USA. The Stanford Humanities Center and the Stanford Institute for International Studies are pleased to announce a new fellowship program for the 2005-2006 International Studies Fellowship. The fellowships are open to junior and senior scholars who are not US nationals, and have faculty appointments at universities outside the United States. Applicants should have a PhD or advanced degree and must obtain a letter of nomination from their institution. Online registration deadline: 30 November, application receipt deadline: 24 January 2005. More detailed information and downloadable application forms (in PDF format) are available at the Stanford Humanities Center website: shc.stanford.edu/fellowships/his.htm.

Fellowships at the National Endowment for Democracy, USA. The NED invites applications to its Reagan-Fascall Democracy Fellows Program. Established in 2001 to enable democracy activists, scholars and journalists from around the world to deepen their understanding of democracy and enhance their ability to promote democratic change, the fellowship program is based at NED’s International Forum for Democratic Studies, in Washington, DC, USA. The fellows program is intended primarily to support practitioners and scholars from new and aspiring democracies. Distinguished scholars from the United States and other established democracies are also eligible to apply. Practitioners are expected to have substantial experience working to promote democracy. Scholars are expected to have a doctorate, or academic equivalent, at the time of application. The program is not designed to pay for professional training or to support students working towards a degree. A working knowledge of English is an important pre-requisite for participation in the program. Deadline for applications for 2005-2006: 1 November. For further information visit www.ned.org and follow the link to ‘Fellowship Programs’ or e-mail: fellowships@ned.org.

The Smithsonian’s National Museum of African Art (Washington DC) celebrated an important milestone: 25 years ago, on 13 August 1979, the museum became part of the Smithsonian Institution by an act of Congress. Several special activities will mark the museum’s silver anniversary. The museum is Africa’s only museum dedicated to the collection, conservation and exhibition of traditional and contemporary African art. For information view the museum’s website at Africa.si.edu.

African Development Foundation. The United States Congress established the African Development Foundation (ADF) in 1980 as an independent public corporation with a mandate to promote the participation of Africans in the economic and social development of their countries. For more than 20 years, ADF has helped grassroots groups and individuals in Africa help themselves by providing the resources they need to advance their own efforts to promote economic and social development (website: http://www.adf.gov/index.html).

Call for Papers. International Journal of Critical Psychology. Special Issue. Trauma in Africa: Constructions, Experiences, and Interventions. The journal is announcing a call for papers for a special issue offering insights on a broad range of topics related to trauma in the African Continent. Major conflicts in areas such as Rwanda, South Africa, and the Democratic Republic of Congo have made a powerful impact on the African Continent, resulting in harm to individuals, family structures, and communities. Often viewed as a site of violence, Africa should also rightly be viewed as a location at the forefront of critical debate around issues of trauma and the development of effective interventions for survivors. Ongoing discussions have been raised on issues such as different experiences of trauma, child soldiers, the role of NGOs, and conceptualisations of mental illness such as PTSD. This issue will contribute to the critical debate on causes and expressions of trauma in an African context, inform scholars about new and effective approaches to counselling of traumatized individuals, families and communities, and offer insights into causes and experiences of trauma. Deadline: 15 October. Queries to criticalpsych@hotmail.com.

Call for Papers. Journal of International Women’s Studies Volumes: New Perspective on the Gendered Construction of Spaces. Special Issue. The Editors seek scholarly and creative articles, essays, poetry, book reviews, and photography that explore space from a range of perspectives, adopting space as a critical framework for understanding power relations, and exploring spatial relations in terms of gender, sexuality, race and class. Deadline: 15 November. Questions about submissions can be directed to the associate editors: Ranjini L Thaver (rthaver@stetson.edu) or Olga Gershenson (gershenson@judnea.umass.edu).

Call for Papers. The Journal of Women’s History is soliciting articles for a special issue on women, material culture and consumption, guest edited by Clare Haru Crowson. Potential topics include comparative “consumer revolutions;” the gendering of consumption and material culture; fashion, luxury, and the exotic; family and the law in consumption; the relationship between production and consumption, and the women’s role in credit systems and market culture. Deadline 1 April 2005. For further information see http://www.press.jhu.edu/journals/journal_of_womens_history/guidelines.html.

Call for Papers. Canadian Review of Comparative Literature/Revue. Special Issue on African Literature. Deadline 30 June 2005. For full information contact one of the guest editors: Dr Abdul-Rasheed Na’Allah, Department of African American Studies, Western Illinois University (e-mail: a-naallah@wiu.edu), Dr Harry Garuba, Centre for African Studies, University of Cape Town (e-mail: bgaruba@humanities.uct.ac.za) or Dr Uzoma Esonwanne, Department of English, University of Toronto (e-mail: uzoma.esonwanne@utoronto.ca).
